Judge Schneider urges people to vote
Judicial races are an important part of the ballot

315th Juvenile District Court Judge Mike Schneider reminded voters this week that Early Voting starts October 23rd and ends November 3rd and that Election Day is Tuesday, November 7th.

"Judges can't endorse particular candidates," said Judge Schneider, who was appointed to preside in the 315th Juvenile District Court in April and is on the ballot November 7th. "But I know we can encourage people to get involved in the process and make their preference known. This is the way we get in how things are run and that's vital, especially in judicial races. Your voice must be heard and voting is the best way to make sure it is."

And though a lot of media attention has been focused on the well-publicized gubernatorial race in Texas, Judge Schneider said voters should not forget that there are important choices to make "down the ballot."

"Our courtrooms belong to the people," he said. "In the case of the 315th and other juvenile courts, they are specifically tasked with protecting our children and our families and making sure balance is brought to the mix of criminal, civil and family law practiced there. The issues, cases and challenges we confront in our courts, especially our juvenile courts, make a big difference in our community and its future."

Judge Schneider, a former civil prosecutor who specialized in the trial and administration of juvenile court cases, is a Republican running for his first full term. He has been endorsed by a diverse mix of leaders and organizations – the Houston Police Officers Union, POLICE, Inc., the Mexican-American Bar Association of Houston, the "C" Club and the Houston Realty Breakfast Club.

Judge Schneider recently won the Houston Bar Association's Judicial Preference Poll and earlier this year he received the most "qualified" and "well qualified" votes in the HBA Judicial Candidate Qualification Poll.

"MABAH is dedicated to issues everyone in the legal community should care passionately about – maintaining and elevating our standards of professional conduct, improving opportunities for Hispanic attorneys and promoting a better understanding of the legal profession to the Hispanic community and general public," said Judge Schneider, who was appointed Judge of the 315th Juvenile District Court in April. "I'm proud to have the support of this group of legal leaders."

MABAH's endorsement is yet another vote of confidence for Judge Schneider as Election Day draws closers. Judge Schneider recently won the Houston Bar Association's Judicial Preference Poll. That came after he received the most "qualified" and "well qualified" votes in the HBA Judicial Candidate Qualification Poll before the March Primary.

Judge Schneider, a Republican and former civil prosecutor who specialized in the trial and administration of juvenile court cases, is running for his first full term on the bench. He has also recently received endorsements from the "C" Club and the Houston Realty Breakfast Club.

"The campaign is holding on to its momentum and to get endorsements from such a diverse group of leaders and organizations is something that makes me happy," Judge Schneider said. "Our courtrooms are places where all kinds of people come together to seek justice and resolve issues. I think our campaign mirrors that."

Election Day is Tuesday, November 7th. Early voting is October 23rd to November 3rd.
